

The Election of a Republican President Is a Guarantee of the Destiny of the Nation

ANOTHER national campaign is drawing to a close. There is only one thing that will prevent the Democratic party from a sweeping defeat throughout the country, and that is the present prosperity in the United States. If the Democratic party is responsible for it, then the Democratic party is responsible for the war in Europe. If it claims credit for the ephemeral prosperity of the hour produced by the most appalling conflict of arms since the dawn of civilization, then there is no escaping the responsibility for that devastating disaster which threatens to turn the dial back to midnight and compel the civilized world to wait till morning. One proposition is just as reasonable as the other. In fact, proof is not lacking that if this nation had pursued a higher and a firmer stand in the beginning of the conflict in Europe, which broke almost from a clear sky, that the war would have ended before a single shot was fired or a drop of blood shed. And there never was a moment that the country as a whole, regardless of political differences, has not stood ready and anxious to back up the administration to the last ditch to preserve our national honor, to help keep the peace of the whole world, and compel it to respect and honor this nation.

The only question, therefore, that stands between the return of this administration and certain defeat is the fact that the country is prosperous. But there is nothing so certain as that if the war in Europe ends within the next year this prosperity will end then and there. No one can tell whether the war will last a year or five years, but when it does end the economic affairs of the country will be face to face with an absolutely new situation. Now the question for the honest, sincere, thoughtful voter to decide is which of the two dominant parties can most safely be entrusted with the destinies of the nation. For the greater part of the past fifty years, during which time this country has seen its most wonderful growth, the Republican party has been guiding the affairs of the nation.

Every time the Democratic party has been given control nationally the business of the country has been wrecked and long lines of jobless and hungry, starving men and women have flocked the country with their pitiful appeals for a chance to earn a livelihood for themselves and their children in honest toil. This condition prevailed throughout the country at the outbreak of the European war as the result of Democratic policies, for only a brief space of time, and there is no doubt but that history will repeat itself when the war is over, with additional problems and new and perplexing conditions never before experienced. The cost of living was never higher in the history of the world. The attempt to adjust wages scales by legislation to meet these conditions only adds to the burdens of those whose relief is sought to be attained, and deprives both labor and capital of the opportunity and privilege of making these adjustments in accordance with their own interests. A protective tariff law is the only safe and sane method, not only for the protection of labor and industry, but for raising the revenue to run the country without burdensome direct taxation and.

APV disposes national party is opposed to the policy of protection, but has been compelled to repudiate its own platform declarations upon this subject. It has made a failure of running the country and relies alone upon the horrible cataclysm in Europe upon which to base its claims for a continuation of the support and the confidence of the people. No man can say to himself that he can stand it if the rest of the country can. There will be no escaping the consequences if this nation does not place its affairs in safe and tried hands. And the man who lulls himself into the belief that because he is enjoying with the country as a whole the temporary prosperity growing out of the European war, he can escape the conditions that will afflict one and all alike when it is over, is cherishing the biggest delusion a human being ever held to his bosom.

National patriotism may be suffering a slow death, but we do not believe it. We have confidence not only in the abiding patriotism of the people as a whole, but in their sound, common sense. We do not believe that an era of thoughtless indifference has set in or that blind, partisan sectionalism has succeeded the broad nationalism which has made this country strong and vigorous at home, and which alone can secure for it abroad that high degree of respect and confidence which will enable it to maintain the proud and powerful position among the nations of the world to which it is justly entitled, and we, therefore, feel that the Republican party is certain of success in the election next Tuesday, and that following its success the proud American ship of state will again sail all the seas of the world respected, honored and revered by all civilized nations, and that we will have real prosperity, peace, happiness and contentment at home.

DAVENPORT TOO FREE WITH HIS POLITICAL MUD

Candidate Who Murdered and Is Fellow of Criminal Attacks Citizen.

OWN RECORD FOUL WITH DEEP CRIMES

Was Indicted for Introducing Liquor; Bully and Bad "Gun Man."

JAMES S. DAVENPORT has seen fit to take a vicious, unwarranted personal attack on the editor of The World, in which the congressional nominee attempted to cast a shadow on the personal affairs of the editor. The editor of The World is not a candidate; and so far as he knows, there has been no enmity of a personal nature heretofore existing between the two men. Davenport's attacks on the editor are for no other reason than that The World is a Republican newspaper, doing its duty to the Republican party, and supporting the Republican candidate, T. A. Chandler.

The World in its utterances has been fair and honorable. Stories by the score have reached the editor's desk claiming that Davenport was guilty of every crime in the calendar, from being indicted for introducing liquor to that of murder. The World for the past six years has refused to print these reports on Davenport; but inasmuch as he has seen fit to bring the name of the editor of The World into his dirty campaign, we propose to show the proof we have of the character of the man who is now asking again the suffrage of the decent, honest, honorable and law-abiding citizens of the First congressional district.

The fact that he did kill a man, an unarmed woodchopper, in the presence of his little daughter, was tried and sentenced to seven years in the penitentiary on June 29, 1915, is too well known to go further into details. That he always has been an associate, defender and protector of the criminal element, especially the bootlegger, is proved by 18 citations in the Pacific Reporter, and the fact that he absented himself from congress to defend bootleggers whom his own correspondence shows he knew them to be guilty, is also proved. Not only did he neglect his duties as a congressman, but he defended criminals he knew to be guilty, and by his own act attempted to make other criminals by perjuring himself.

The proof of this is in the following letter:

Sixty-third Congress, Committee on the Territories, House of Representatives, United States, Washington, D. C., February 12, 1914.

Mr. John Scrags, Mr. C. H. Jenkins, Mr. John Olin, My Dear Sirs and Friends:—Your case will come up for trial the early part of March in the federal court at Tulsa. I think it would be well if you would keep in touch with the man who was with you in the automobile, as he might admit having the whiskey, and admit that you two had nothing to do with it.

Of course you will understand that you cannot use this fellow's statement, if it should undertake to take depositions in another state the government would not doubt get out a writ of removal and arrest him and bring him back, which would spoil his testimony, and he would possibly swear that you knew as much about the transaction as he did.

We have got to show in some way that you boys knew nothing about this whiskey, or

BELIEVES FOOT WORTH $10,000

This Amount of Damages Asked by E. L. McMahon in Suit Filed Against Railway.

Ten thousand dollars damages for injuries to his right foot are asked by E. L. McMahon in a suit filed yesterday against the Midland Valley Railroad company.

The plaintiff states that he has been employed by an oil well supply company of this city. On October 26 he was ordered to go to the Midland Valley tracks and unload a car of material that had just arrived.

While engaged in this work, McMahon says, the door of the freight car broke from its fastening and fell on his foot, injuring it to the extent that he has been unable to work.

BOYS' FORUM IS PROMISING

Remington Rogers, Attorney of this City, Will Speak this Afternoon.

Having already obtained a membership of thirty and with each member having promised to bring one new member at least, the first meeting of the boys' forum this afternoon at 2:30 gives indications of a big success.

The speaker chosen is Remington Rogers, an attorney of this city and a well known speaker. He will take as his subject, "How We Live." Rogers is a graduate of Yale university and is expected to give an interesting address.

After the address the boys will be allowed to ask any questions they desire.

The boys' forum expects later to cover all the events of the boys' department including the athletic and social activities.

REPUBLICANS MAKE WHIRLWIND FINISH

Record-Breaking Crowds at Three Meetings Held Yesterday.

Precinct Organization Work Will Receive Attention Tomorrow.

J. E. LONG, a farmer of Chelsea, who said he had been a Democrat all his life until conditions in Oklahoma became so rotten that he was forced to change his politics out of self-protection, jumped to the speaking wagon at the close of the Republican rally held in Sand Springs last night and delivered an impromptu but scathing denunciation of the legislature and the state and county governments.

The Sand Springs meeting was pronounced by friend and foe to be the largest political meeting of the year in that city. It marked the close of the most aggressive and thorough campaign ever waged by the Republicans in Tulsa county. Skitok and Sperry were visited in the afternoon. The Skitok meeting was an unusually large one, and in marked contrast to the small crowd that attended a Democratic rally there a few days ago.

Mr. Long, who explained that he was raised in Texas and Arkansas by Democratic parents, said that he could not resist the temptation to say a few words about conditions in Oklahoma.

Would Change Bible.

"Campbell Russell is a glowing type of the kind of 'statesmen' that have been representing us in the legislature," he declared. "If the ten com-

PLAN TO START ELECTRIC LINE WITHIN 60 DAYS

Millionaires Are Behind Tulsa to Sapulpa Traction Company.

INCORPORATE FOR $100,000 TO BEGIN

Tracks Will Run Almost Parallel With Frisco Railway.

TULSA'S long cherished dream of being the center of a network of interurban railroads is about to come true. Within sixty days construction is expected to start on an electric railway between this city and Sapulpa.

The Sapulpa line will be only the first unit of the system which will radiate from Tulsa like the spokes of a wheel. When it is completed additional lines will be built to Muskogee, Collinsville and other nearby towns.

The interurban system is being promoted by the Tulsa Traction company, which has some of the strongest financial men in the city as its backers.

The company has been incorporated for $100,000, but this will be increased to $500,000 in the near future.

Go After Right-of-Way.

Tomorrow morning the traction company will file condemnation suits in the district court for part of its right-of-way between West Tulsa and Red Fork. More than $25,000 worth of real estate will be involved in these suits. The traction company has had agents at work for several weeks in an attempt to buy the right-of-way, but the prices asked have been prohibitive.

As now planned the tracks of Tulsa-Sapulpa line will run almost parallel with those of the Frisco railroad from the new Arkansas river bridge to the city limits of Sapulpa. The entrance to Tulsa has not been decided upon. The railroad will use the railway track on the new bridge.

Equipment of the highest grade obtainable will be used on the new road. Contracts have been let for extra heavy steel rails and early delivery is promised.

Use Special Cars.

Special care will be taken in building the roadbed. It will be rock-balasted the entire length, insuring rapid, safe and comfortable transit. The coaches will be of the most modern type with observation ends. The line will have double track part of the way at first, but later it is proposed to double the track all its distance.

The cars will make the run between Tulsa and Sapulpa in thirty minutes. They will operate on an hourly schedule until the traffic demands call for more frequent service.

100 LOSE LIVES WHEN BRITISH SHIP SINKS

WORST GALE IN YEARS; CONNEMARA COLLIDES WITH RETRIEVER.

Both Vessels Sank Immediately; Only One Survivor; No Americans on Board.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—(3:50 p. m.)—In one of the worst gales ever known in the Irish sea the British steamship Connemara, with passengers and cargo of cattle from Greenore, Ireland, for Holy Head, Wales, collided last night just outside the Carlingford bar, with the British steamship Retriever, laden with coal. Both vessels sank immediately with an estimated loss of life of about one hundred. Of the fifty passengers and crew of 31 aboard the Connemara, there is only one survivor. It is virtually certain there were no Americans on board. The entire crew of the Retriever was lost.

Many bodies are being washed ashore on the Irish coast. Numbers of cattle also are being washed up, some alive.

The weather was so rough that it would have been impossible to launch any boats, even had time permitted.

GREEKS CLASHING WITH VENEZELISTS

Royal Army Arrives Outside of Katerina and Begins Engagement.

ITALIANS MAKE GAIN

Continue Offensive Against Austro-Hungarians in Carso Region.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—(2:57 a. m.)—The Greek army arrived outside of Katerina and an engagement with the Venezelists began tonight, says a dispatch to the Sunday Observer from Athens dated Friday.

The Italian troops, continuing their new offensive against the Austro-Hungarian forces in the Carso region, have advanced nearly a mile toward the Wippach river and have taken 553 prisoners, according to the Italian war office. The Austrians have brought new batteries into action in the zone east of Gorizia and are maintaining a fierce barrage fire. The artillery activity is increasing on both sides in the Carina front.

Capture Observatory.

The Italians report the capture by assault of an observatory on the slopes of Cima Boeche in the Travignol-Avizio valley, in the Dolomite Alps, and say their troops held the captured positions despite a violent bombardment. Several battles are being stubbornly fought south of Brzeany in Galicia, near Michishou and Lipulcadolna, where the Germans, after violent bombardment with heavy artillery, launched an attack with considerable forces. The Russian war office admits the German troops occupied part of the advanced Russian trenches on the heights east of Lipulcadolna. The battle is continuing. Continuation of the German successes by the capture of additional parts of the Russian main position on the left bank of the Narayuvka in Galicia, is claimed from Berlin.

On the Rumanian front the Rumanians have advanced west of the

CAMPAIGNERS CLOSE WITH A FINAL APPEAL

Wilson and Hughes Make Speeches on Last Day of Election Fight.

ALL READY NOW FOR THE PEOPLE'S VOTE

Republican Headquarters Declares Hughes Will Carry Country.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—With a final appeal to voters the candidates for the presidency closed their campaign tonight. Similarly in virtually every city and hamlet of the country advocates of the different parties presented their closing arguments in behalf of their candidates both national and state.

President Wilson made his last address late today at Shadow Lawn at a celebration of Old Home day that was fittingly participated in by a gathering of his neighbors from New Jersey, the president's home state. From now on the president plans to spend his time quietly at his summer home where he will receive the returns next Tuesday night.

Charles E. Hughes, the Republican nominee, also spent the day with neighbors and friends in his home city, New York. He made a whirlwind tour of the town beginning early in the afternoon and ending with a mass meeting at night in Madison Square Garden. He plans to remain in the city over election day and will receive the returns at the hotel at which he has made his headquarters.

Sum Up Issues.

Both candidates in their final talks summed up the issues as presented by the vice-presidential nominees, and expressed confidence of victory on Tuesday.

The campaign just closed has been active and prolonged. The battle has been fought largely on issues presented by the candidates of the dominant parties such as the problems growing out of the European war and the situation in Mexico, the tariff and prosperity of the nation.

It has provided some remarkable features in the way of long continued journeys and speech making. These included the tours of Mr. Hughes, who started on August 5, and since then has traveled about twenty-eight thousand miles through 32 states with only three brief rests. It has been stated that Mr. Hughes made about five hundred speeches.

J. Frank Hanly, the prohibition candidate, assisted by Ira E. Landrith, the vice-presidential nominee, spent nearly two months on the road. He concluded the fight for his cause in his home town, Indianapolis, tonight. He has traveled approximately twenty thousand miles through 34 states.

Allen L. Benson, the Socialist candidate, and Arthur E. Reimer, the Socialist-Labor nominee, have also campaigned ardently.

Campaigned at Home.

Mr. Wilson has conducted his campaign chiefly on the grounds of his summer home at Shadow Lawn near Long Branch, N. J. There he has been swayed on by partisans and friends from near and far and in their presence he has told his political opinions and beliefs. He has made five short trips from home, four to the middle west and one to New York. His furthest trip west has been to Omaha.

HOW DOES "HUB" SOUND TO YOU?

This Is One of Names Suggested for New Tulsa Street; Others Poured In.

How would you like to go riding on "The Hub"?

That was one of the names suggested yesterday for the new street in West Tulsa. It is perhaps the most novel yet entered in the city commission's popular contest.

It was suggested by a woman who has made her home in West Tulsa for several years. She told City Auditor Frank Newkirk that she believed her suggestion should have some preference as she was one of the oldest residents of the section which the new thoroughfare will serve.

School teachers are encouraging children to suggest names for the street. They point out that it is an excellent means of fostering civic pride in the young.

Other suggestions received yesterday were West Tulsa Place, Refiners' boulevard, Cella street, Miller Drive and Woodard avenue.

RUSSIAN BALLET TO VISIT TULSA

World's Greatest Artist, Waslav Nijinsky, Leads Troupe to Success.

HERE ON DECEMBER 11

Akdar Temple Brings the Czar's Dancers Here as One of U. S. Cities.

AFTER winging their flight from Rome to Berlin, on to Paris, London and Vienna, all of which in turn capitulated to the mad grace of their dancing, Diaghileff's ballet russe has begun its tour of the United States, and Tulsa, as one of the few cities to be visited by this wonderful troupe, will have the opportunity of seeing Nijinsky, Blom, Lopokova and Revalis, surrounded by forty of the stars of the czar's own ballet on the stage on the night of December 11.

Long has the secret that Tulsa and the state would have an opportunity to see these greatest of dancing artists remained in the breast of the members of the Akdar temple, but as all good things, even secrets, it could not long remain from the ears of the lovers of music and art, and Lee Levering yesterday morning announced that all details had been arranged for the appearance of the company in Tulsa next month.

Is Large Company.

Two hundred or more dancers, musicians and musicians comprise the ballet russe, an internationally famous combination which has just introduced to America and art form popular abroad, but new to these United States, and which after its second New York appearance will make a coast-to-coast trip by special permission.

LUCK played favorites and Kendall college won the championship of the state from Oklahoma Agricultural college in the season's classic yesterday afternoon at Association field—in spite of itself.

Those orange and black clad gladiators which comprise the machine of the institution of learning on Tulsa's eastern border emerged from the annual clash exhausted, battered beyond any specific shape and not a little ashamed of themselves but bearing nevertheless on their padded shoulders that long-dreamed-of trophy. The final score was 17 to 13, which does not represent in any degree the respective strength of the two aggregations.

It was a madcap game. A nightmare of fumbles, jagged defenses and haphazard offensives. No two touchdowns were met on a white-chalked gridiron who so utterly and completely did not live up to expectations as the contenders in yesterday's melee.

Kendall Went Wild.

Kendall, touted as a scintillating, meteoric bunch of speed and nerve, went ham-scram from the first whistle, while the Aggie's cornerbacks, solid, stolidly, cold-heartedly and lumberingly but without the fire to stay their opponents.

There was little semblance of mechanical perfection manifest throughout the fray. A Kendall backfield tried to go around left end and couldn't. Kendall's backfield tried to go through the line and couldn't. Then Kendall resorted to its only other offensive, aerial warfare.

Victory came to the local athletes at the last heart-breaking play. With but three more minutes in which to play, with night gathering and obscuring for the spectators field and players, and with the score 13 to 19 in favor of the visitors, Kendall executed a forward pass, which amounted to a touchdown, and the game was won.

At the time the last touchdown was made the ball was in Kendall's hands on the Aggie's 20-yard line. The teams lined up, the ball was snapped into capt. John Young's hands and that doughty warrior heaved it clear of the Less Politics and More Business Needed in Tulsa County Affairs

In city and county affairs The World has never contended that national politics cuts much figure. The candidates and the things they stand for are usually known personally to most of the voters and the election of local officials is more or less the reflection of the personal regard of their neighbors and friends. A man who is a partisan first and a public servant secondly is not worthy of much consideration, but there are always those who try to ride into office on their partisan affiliations and when they are successful seek to serve the party to which they belong with more or less disregard to the public generally whose servants they are. We have had that sort of condition in Tulsa county until the people are getting tired of it. What this county needs is a change. We must get away from the old order of things and the ring that has been rotting in office from one position to another should be broken up. Let us have a county government that is representative of all the people and not merely the narrow partisan part of them, one that will be responsive to the very highest and best interests of Tulsa county. Where one party is permitted to control a county government for a long period of time with unbroken authority and power there is bound to grow up an inner circle of office-seekers who will arrogate to themselves powers and privileges of a personal nature in no manner connected with the public welfare and the best interests of the people. Such a condition we believe prevails to a large extent in Tulsa county. The time is propitious to clean house and make a change.

The Republicans have nominated two of the cleanest, strongest and best men for the legislature whom the voters of this county have ever had the opportunity to vote for. They are Harry H. Rogers and Glenn Condon. Mr. Rogers is one of the ablest and best lawyers in the state and is a splendid type of citizen. Neither he nor Mr. Condon sought the nomination, but he will accept the office if elected and serve the county in a manner that will reflect credit upon the county and the state.

So far as Glenn Condon is concerned his relation to this newspaper is of a close personal nature. The editor of The World, however, had no knowledge until after a committee of representative citizens had filed his nomination with the secretary of the state election board. There is nothing that he can do to specially serve this newspaper in the legislature. His services to The World as a legislative reporter would be of far more benefit to it than as a member of that body. But he is a candidate and we shall be glad to see him win. There is not a cleaner-minded or more upright man in the state than Glenn Condon and he has ability of a rare character. From an humble beginning he has risen rapidly to the point where he is acknowledged to be one of the brightest and best newspaper men in the state. He is a man, a real man, every inch of him. As a private citizen and in his newspaper work he has contributed in no small measure to the success of every worthy movement for the upbuilding of this city. He loves to do good to his fellow men. There is no mean streak in his makeup. He has a heart and mind full of generous impulses and if every man who at one time or another has been befriended by him votes for him next Tuesday his election will be almost unanimous. We defy the most carping, cringing critic, or the most exasperating ingrate, and no community is ever free from them, to point to a single act of this splendid young man that in the slightest degree detracts from his standing as a man and a citizen worthy of the highest trust and responsibility. This is the first and last word this paper has had to say editorially concerning his candidacy. We have a genuine, personal affection for him, which we know is shared by the community as a whole and of which he will always prove himself worthy in whatever position he may be placed.

It will be well for the voters of Tulsa county to remember that the candidates for the legislature will appear upon the state and not the county ballot. Do not overlook them.

So far as the remainder of the Republican county ticket is concerned we repeat, vote for the men, mindful of the fact that a change cannot fail to do this county a lot of good.

During the bitter personal campaign a very closing day of the
